(Copyrighted, 1894, by the Associated Press.) LONDON, June 2 - Henry Irving gave morning performance of "Faust" on in order to enable him to pre ride in the evening at the annual dinne f the Royal Theatric Fund. There wer two hundred and fifty notable guests at dinner, including Sir Leighton and Baros Leopold de Rothschild. Mr. Irving made an amusing speech in which he ridiculed the prevailing idea that the theatrical depression was likely to drive actors to the profession of pugilism.

That the rain and wind storms which played around the vicinity of New York for the past two weeks were not con fined to this section is evident from the stories told by the captain and crew York were among those present at Covent of incoming vessels. Far out at sea countered, and a certain amount of unasiness is felt for the smaller craf that are known to have been in the

Capt. Langdon brought in the ship

Capt. Langdon brought in the ship Robert Dixon, from Rio Janeiro this morning, having been fifty-four days on the voyage. The ship is in ballast to D. B. Dearborn. The captain reports fair weather up to May 26. He was then south of the Gulf stream and a heavy westerly gale sprang up and lasted with hurricane force for three hours.

The lower foretop gallant yard was carried away, while the fore and mizzen upper topsails and main staysail were blown clear out of the bolt ropes.

The experience of the Robert Dixon was unfortunate in many ways. The vessel sailed from this port for Rio Janeiro Sept. 7, in command of Capt. Cushing, with a cargo of general merchandise. She arrived at the port named on Nov. 29, but owing to the troubled state of affairs she had much difficulty in unloading her cargo.

She was compelled to remain in the harbor about four months, and during that time Capt. Cushing was taken sick with yellow fever. He was removed to a hospital, where he died later. His young wife, who was with him, returned home on the steamer Delcomyn, which arrived here April 21.

The cook's boy was also taken sick with yellow fever about the same time as the captain, and he also died. Then, Capt. Langdon took command. No other cases of sickness were reported after the ship left Rio.

cases of sickness were reported after the ship left Rio. I.

The Norwegian bark, C. Tobias, from Padang, also got into port this morning in charge of Capt. Flaystadt. She was one hundred and fourteen days making the voyage. It took Capt. Flaystadt fourteen days to round the Cape of Good Hope so strong were the gales. The bark is consigned to Tobias & Co.

On the street she dressed very plainty, almost inexpensively, and nobody who saw her and did not know her calling would for a moment have suspected her of being theatrical. She has a three-year contract in England at $500 a week, which she goes back to fill. The manager of "The Skating Rink," at the Hjou Theatre, offered her $700 a week. The medal is a large gold affair in several parts, with medallion photographs of Mr. Pastor and Miss Tilley, a large American eagle, several preclous stones and an inscription setting forth that it is intended to pleasantly remind her of the fine American triumph she had made. In connection with the revival of "The Candidate" at the Criterion last Thursday, it may be recalled that when the play was originally produced at the same theatre in November, 1884, Charles Wyndham announced, in reply to the calls for the "author," that the garden than in question was in the "House," I. a., House of Commons, but otherwise gave no clue as to his identity. "The Candidate" was adapted by Justin Huntley McCarthy from "Le Depute De Bombignac," by Alexander Risson, which had been played at the Francais some months previously without conspicuous success.

The cast for the revival includes, besides Wyndham himself as the volatile Viscount Oldacre, Mesers, William Blakeley, George Glden, C. W. Somersel, Miss Fanny Coleman, Miss Pattle Browne and Miss Mary Moore.

Poverty isn't as had or as hard to endure as pain. Man only needs a few clothes, a few pounds of food and a roof that doesn't leak to be comfortable, and with health and a little philosophy thrown in to be happy. But if he lacks health, if his body is pain-racked, he can enjoy nothing. And that is the condition of the pensioners of the Sick Babies' Fund.

When the doctors call at the wretched homes along the rivers' edges and ask if they is anything they can do, the inevitable reply of the mother is:

"Only get my child well."

With good health the possibilities of man are all but limitless. One of the staff doctors hits the nail squarely on the head when he writes to the Chief of Corps:

"There has never, I venture to say, been a year in the history of the Fund when the children needed looking after as they do this year. The reason is plain enough. Every one knows what a hard Winter the past has been for the poor. The men have been out of work. Credit is hard to get; the pawnbrokers will lend nothing on furniture and clothes, and the results show on the children, as a case I had uptown Saturday will illustrate. I found a child with follicular-tonsilitis, but very much sicker than she would usually be. On singuiry it came out that owing to lack of work the children had been on short commons for some time, and the mother, the patient and the other child were dehilitated and anaemic in consequence. The results is that the poor little ones were not in even their usual state to resist sickness, and if we would save the children had been on short commons
